De qué vamos a hablar

1. Algunos retos del mundo académico
2. Cómo fomentar la solidaridad académica
3. Cómo desarrollar redes durante la etapa doctoral

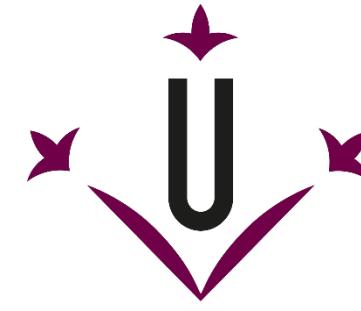

- La salud mental es un desafío para los y las académicas de todos los niveles de la carrera científica (Kinman & Wray, 2014; Wray & Kinman, 2020; Gorczynski, 2018)
- Especialmente en la etapa doctoral: altas tasas de abandono de programas de doctorado
- 36% necesitó ayuda profesional para lidiar con problemas de salud mental relacionados con el doctorado (Nature, 2019)

PhD Network Netherlands (PNN, 2021)

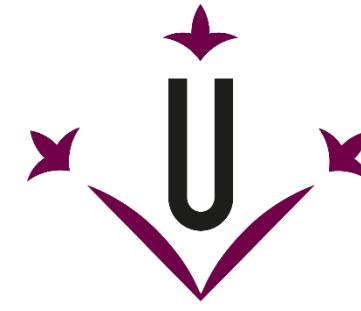

- 47% riesgo alto de sufrir problemas de salud mental, mayor para internacionales (56%)
- 60% presión laboral alta o demasiado alta
- 63% más horas de las pactadas en su contrato

“Caring within the academy is a creative diversion- of time, of attention, of affection, of academic positions designed to foster individual achievements and competition. It is a wink of recognition... within a totalizing space. It is an act of resistance... Although it may seem unsatisfactory and insufficient, maintaining possibilities in the face of exhaustion is critical- it is the basis of everything, including change.”
(Laurence Simard-Gagnon, 2016)

“Academia is an emotional conundrum where we simultaneously feel we are overworked and also that we are not producing & doing enough. As long as academia works under the logics of capitalism & reproduces them, regardless what we create their will always be a demand to work more” (Corey J. Miles, 2020)

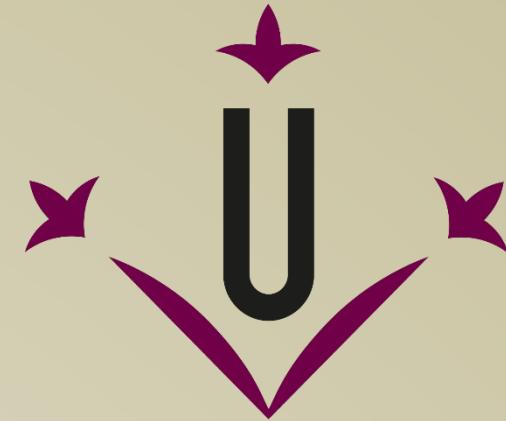

“Self-care: that can be an act of political warfare. In directing our care towards ourselves we are redirecting care away from its proper objects, we are not caring for those we are supposed to care for; we are not caring for the bodies deemed worth caring about. And that is why in queer, feminist and anti-racist work self-care is about the creation of community, fragile communities, assembled out of the experiences of being shattered. We reassemble ourselves through the ordinary, everyday and often painstaking work of looking after ourselves; looking after each other. This is why when we have to insist, I matter, we matter, we are transforming what matters.” (Sara Ahmed, 2015)

Estrategias de networking y creación de redes en la etapa doctoral:

1. Cuenta con tu equipo supervisor
2. Aprovecha todas las oportunidades
3. Realiza una estancia de investigación
4. Desarrolla tu liderazgo académico, organiza y conecta a tus pares
5. Busca apoyo de mentores internacionales
6. Mantente en contacto con tu red
7. Fomenta la solidaridad académica en tus redes
